

END-OF-LIFE PASTORAL CARE

When end-of-life draws near, Menno Place has chaplains and trained palliative volunteers available to be with your loved one when you cannot.

They will sit beside them, reading aloud, playing music, saying prayers, or in silence, as desired.

When your loved one passes and the funeral home arrives, we cover them with the Passing Quilt, and together with family and staff, we say goodbye. All are welcome for this parting ritual, a short processional with a word of farewell, a prayer, or a song to honour your loved one.

Our chaplains are available to discuss any concerns or questions you may have when making these important decisions for your loved one.

ARRANGING THE DETAILS

After the death of a loved one, grieving family members are often confronted with dozens of decisions that must be made quickly and under great emotional stress. We recommend choosing a funeral home in advance when there is time to consult your family member as well as your financial advisors.

The local funeral homes and cremation providers listed here offer a wide selection of burial and disposition options, prices, and services. If time permits, contact several providers to compare services and prices. Choose the funeral home or service that best meets your specific needs.
